Product idea.

Simply an inspiring system.

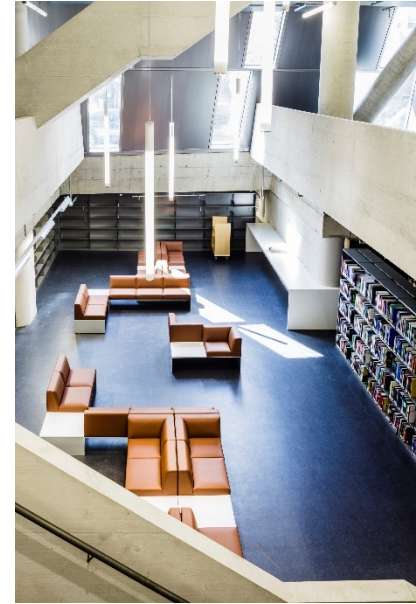

- Lounge system featuring many combination options
- The modular kit for architects
- Clear, elegant formal language thanks to u-shaped, puristic bench
- Lightweight, stable aluminium frame
- Cushions and seat elements available in three different back heights
- High degree of seating comfort, even during intensive usage, thanks to intelligent inner structure
- Also available as single-seater with extendable and swiveling writing table
- banc media offers contemporary electrification
- Mobile seating elements and tables complement the bench elements

Designed for the university library Freiburg.

Obsolete building technology, structural deficiencies and high energy consumption were the reasons behind the decision to renovate the library. In addition to flexibility of use, the overarching objective of the library management was to create an optimal learning environment for students.

Brunner came up with the idea of designing a completely new product precisely tailored to the requirements of the university library.

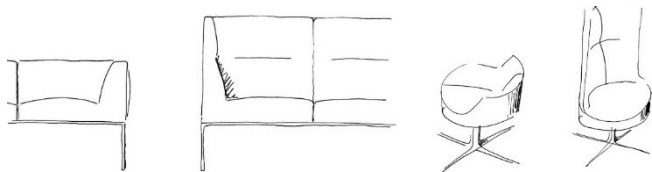

The new fittings and furnishings needed to be modular, durable and easy to clean.

Integrated sockets and ergonomic seating were two other requirements that banc needed to meet.

banc's modular design was a hit from the word go.

In the end, the goals were actually surpassed and a special tailor-made solution became the modular banc lounge furniture system and successful product range.

In principle, the idea is as simple as it is alluring: The fundamental element is a sturdy, U-shaped aluminium base. Depending on requirements, cushions and seat elements can be attached at three different back heights. More elements were developed based on this concept, such as armchairs, bar counters and side tables.

"We knew straight away that we had to develop highly versatile furniture to make use of the various locations in the library with their different functions."

Maximum flexibility to create all kinds of combinations.

Universal yet always unique, banc is the perfect modular system for anyone looking for a design to suit their specific wants and needs. The old-fashioned bench that gives the product its name can be extended as required and adapted in line with a wide variety of requirements.

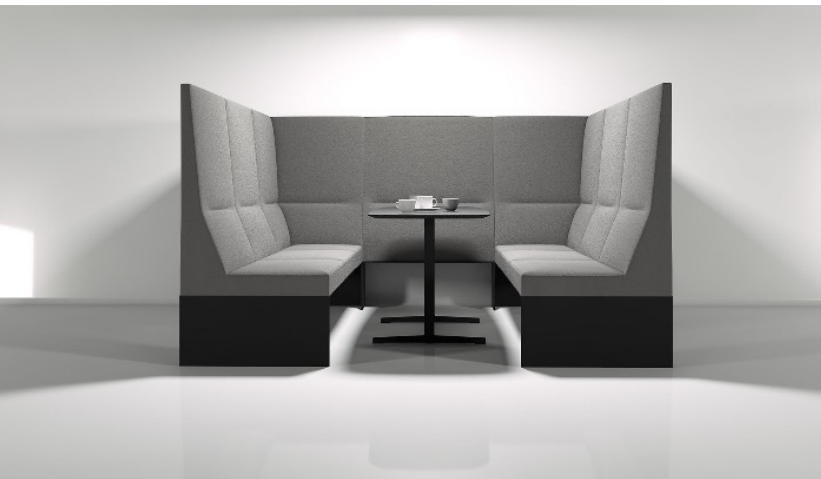

Large seating landscapes that create space and are fully or partially open? Or small private booths that make for ideal spaces for focussed work or private meetings? The possibilities are endless, with space for three or thirty people.

Bench system

Modular system made up of seat elements and bases

A square has never been so versatile.

With a slender base and comfy square upholstery element, this is minimalism at its finest. The basic module, transparent and open on all sides, may be simple, but there is the option of adding fully upholstered backs at three different heights.

The clear, elegant design of banc always shines through – in any direction and in a row or corner configuration.

Cabins – a room inside a room.

With room for one or more in a private cabin, banc provides the perfect place to escape for a while. Creating space for focussed work or private meetings, the seating landscape has been designed with modern working environments and communication needs in mind.

Perfect for central areas in offices or libraries, lobbies and lounge areas that need to be transformed into fully upholstered meeting rooms in a flash.

Single cabin:
with a sliding and swivelling writing tablet.

Double and triple cabin:
with optional media integration.

Perfection all round with occasional furniture.

Mobile occasional furniture is the perfect addition to the range. The clear and minimalist design runs through every element – lightweight stools, upholstered easy chairs with a low or high back and bar stools alike.

Sleek side tables also come in different designs to allow for countless potential combinations. The round design even contrasts beautifully with the square shape of the banc upholstery elements.

Sustainability sussed with a modular system.

banc boasts a stunning sleek design and modular structure. Its clever interior ensures ultimate comfort even with heavy use.

The individual seat elements can be removed, cleaned or replaced in no time as and when required. It's even easy to add extra components later down the line.

Practicality wasn't neglected in the banc design either, with the floating U-shaped profile making it possible to clean the floor under the bench, for example.

Lightweight, U-shaped base in aluminium: for ease of cleaning under the furniture.

Option to add electrical connection.

Three sockets can be added to the banc lounge furniture for easy access. So there's no need to worry about having to stop work because of a dead battery.

The banc cabins also have an additional lounge element for media integration, making them perfect for meetings or private conversations.

Profile box with three connection points: a discreet feature that blends in with the design.

banc media:
a modern power solution.
